

Hispanic Studies

In today's global society, knowledge of a second language is a necessary bridge to understanding human diversity. Spanish is one of the 10 most widely used languages in the world and is spoken by nearly 35 million people in the United States. The rich cultural legacy of the Spanish-speaking world makes the study of Spanish language and cultures an exciting and useful window to the many aspects of our world, whether you are motivated by an interest in literature, history, politics, social work, business, nursing, science or the arts.

Why Hispanic Studies at Illinois Wesleyan?

- Curriculum introduces students to the Spanish language as it is spoken all over the world, in Spain and the Americas.
- Offers studies in literature and cultural history in addition to language and linguistics.
- Teaches cultural history courses that stress the connections between literature, the other arts and the sociopolitical environment from which they emerge.
- Provides literature courses that sharpen analytical skills and foster greater sensitivity to language as an expression of culture.
- Works very well with other departments and interdisciplinary programs on campus to combine your interest in Spanish with other majors.
- Requires a minimum of one semester abroad in a Spanish-speaking country to complete degree requirements.

Learning from a Quality Faculty

Hispanic Studies faculty teach general courses in language as well as courses within their area of specialty.

“By completing a major in Hispanic Studies you will be working with professors that are genuinely interested in your advancement as a critical thinker, communicator and as a student that is knowledgeable of Latin American and Spanish language, literature, and the history and politics of cultural production. The courses in our program offer opportunities to interact with the Hispanic community, collaborate with faculty, and present your own research. The study abroad requirement to a Spanish-speaking country is usually a highlight for many students. We look forward to chatting with you about your interests!”
